Quotable

Samford faculty experts share thoughts with media.

John Carroll (Law) in the Anniston (Ala.) Star April 27 on students who voluntarily pray not being in violation of church and state separation laws

"But school systems have to be careful about fostering any kind of particular religion or prayer. The Supreme Court has been much stricter on public schools than on other public institutions in regards to the separation of church and state."

Jim Williams (Public Affairs Research Council of Alabama) in the Birmingham Business Journal May 7 on an Alabama law that authorizes the state to intervene if a municipality is failing, as it has done with a faltering school system

"If you look at what we do for schools—under the same logic—if the local community is running itself into the ground, there are all types of opportunities to intervene. If it's good for schools, it's certainly good for finances."

Bill Ross (Law) in the Phoenix Arizona Republic May 8 about why Attorney General Eric Holder might directly challenge Arizona's new immigration-enforcement law, rather than waiting to join a suit brought by a private party, which it does more frequently

"The DOJ [Department of Justice] could make that argument with much greater authority than a private litigant because the DOJ is directly involved with the enforcement of immigration law." ■

Samford graduated 802 seniors from 27 states and 11 foreign countries during 2010 commencement.

21 Faculty Members Get Promotions

Twenty-one Samford faculty members recently received promotions, effective in 2010–11.

Promoted from associate professor to full professor were Kim Benner, pharmacy; Les Ennis, education; Kathryn Fouse, music; Randolph Horn, political science; and Mary Karlet, nursing.

New associate professors are Carl Beckwith, divinity; William Belski, Charles Carson and Jeremy Thornton, business; Charlotte Brammer, communication studies; Jill Cunningham, nursing; Lajuana Davis and Wendy Greene, law; Mandy Hilsmier, education; Janie Kennedy, mathematics; and David Luthin, Angela Thomason and Bruce Waldrop, pharmacy.

Jaroslaw Szurek was promoted from assistant to associate librarian.

Promoted from instructor to assistant professor were Julie Head and Jennifer Steele, nursing. ■

Genealogists Headed to Samford

More than 200 genealogists from across the nation will convene at Samford June 13–18 for the 48th annual Institute of Genealogy and Historical Research. The institute, directed by Della Darby, provides a week of intensive study led by nationally prominent genealogy educators. It is cosponsored by the Board for Certification of Genealogists. Ten courses are offered, including Research in the South, Researching African-American Ancestors and Scottish Genealogical Research. ■

Copeland Leads Choral Music

Samford's School of the Arts has named Dr. Philip Copeland as director of choral activities and associate professor. His focus will be the A Cappella Choir, conducting and the music education curriculum. He succeeds Dr. Timothy Banks, who retired in May, as A Cappella Choir director.

Copeland is "a nationally recognized leader among choral conductors, and he has a tremendous heart for teaching and ministry," said School of the Arts Dean Joe Hopkins.

Copeland previously led the choral program at the University of Alabama at Birmingham for nine years. UAB choirs achieved national recognition through significant performances at conventions of the National Collegiate Choral Organization and American Choral Directors Association [ACDA]. He led the choir in two international choral competitions, the Fleischman International Choral Competition in Cork, Ireland, and the Florlilege Vocal de Tours in Tours, France. The choir won significant awards in both.

Copeland holds degrees in music education from the University of Mississippi and Mississippi College, and the doctor of musical arts in conducting from Southern Baptist Seminary.

He serves as director of music ministries at South Highland Presbyterian Church.

This fall, Copeland will lead the newly formed Alabama Symphony Chorus in preparation for masterworks with the Alabama Symphony Orchestra. ■

Samford University is an Equal Opportunity Institution that complies with applicable law prohibiting discrimination in its educational and employment policies and does not unlawfully discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, age, disability, or national or ethnic origin.

Marigene Chamberlain (World Languages and Cultures) was appointed by Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary as academic director of Escuela del Curso de Estudio in the Course of Study School. Held annually in July, the school is the ordination track for local pastors in the United Methodist Church; Escuela del Curso de Estudio is the Spanish-language course of study. She will oversee the academic, spiritual formation and extracurricular components of the course of study for Hispanic/Latino local pastors, and work on the continued development of the program.

Stephen Chew (Psychology) had an article published in the May issue of the APS Observer entitled "Improving Classroom Performance by Challenging Student Misconceptions about Learning." The article is based on the annual convocation presentation Chew gives to incoming freshmen about how to study effectively. He was also a participant in a conference on improving the AP Psychology exam sponsored by the College Board in Chicago, Ill., April 23–25.

Malia Fincher (Biology), and Jim Brown and Will Womack (History) traveled to India and Bhutan with a group of biology and history students for a summer travel course May 16–June 1. This summer, Fincher will conduct research with freshman Casey Moore in Costa Rica as part of the Samford University Research Program on a long-term experiment investigating diversity in reforestation plantings. She also will conduct research with two students, Stephanie Guckenberger and Ben Meadows, at Oak Mountain State Park this summer, investigating the impacts of deer browsing on Oak Mountain's forests, with funding from the Vulcan Materials Center.

Sean Flynt and Philip Poole (University Advancement) provided leadership for a recent accreditation preparation seminar hosted by the Alabama Chapter of Public Relations Society of America [PRSA]. The seminar is offered to public relations professionals preparing for the Universal Accreditation Exam offered by PRSA and 11 other professional organizations.

Mandy Hilsmier (Teacher Education) made two presentations at the 2010 Council for Exceptional Children Convention and Expo in Nashville, Tenn., April 21–24: "The Generalization of Repeated Exposures to Text: Is Repeated Reading Effective?" and "Using Functional-Based Assessment with Secondary-Age Students in the General Education Classroom." Master of education students Jennifer Johnson, Chris Carson and Kristi Dutton copresented the second program.

Mike Howell (Biology, professor emeritus) and Vitaly Charny (World Languages and Cultures) have published a book entitled Butterflies of Alabama (Pearson Publishing). The 514-page all-color book documents some 139 species of Alabama butterflies, including 116 species photographed in their natural habitat. The book is based on a nine-year study involving more than 500 field trips during which more than 22,000 individual butterflies were identified. The book is available in the Samford bookstore and on Amazon.com.

Peter Hughes, Maisha Freeman and Michael Kendrach (Pharmacy), with Stacy Lauderdale (MedAssets, Inc.) published "Gauging Family Practice Physicians' Application of Evidence-Based Medicine [EBM] and Acceptance of Pharmacists as an EBM Resource" in the International Journal for Pharmacy Education and Practice for spring 2010.

Lynda Jentsch (World Languages and Cultures) chaired two sessions on Latin American literature at the Associated Colleges of the South's 18th annual Latin American Studies Symposium at Birmingham-Southern College April 16–17.

Andy Konitzer (Political Science) received a Title VIII–supported short-term research grant from the International Research and Exchange Board to conduct field research in Serbia and Croatia during the summer of 2010. He will gather the remaining data necessary to complete his next book exploring European Union expansion into the Balkans.

Mikle Ledgerwood (World Languages and Cultures) presented a paper on "The Web 2.0 to 4.0 and Language Learning" at the Kentucky Foreign Language Conference April 17. Ledgerwood also led a faculty retreat on "Technology, Language Learning and a New Language Center" at Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Wash., April 25. Ledgerwood was one of the "fathers" of the first Language Center at PLU in 1995 and was pleased to be part of the next generation there.

David Luthin (Pharmacy) received a $10,000 McWhorter Research Grant for a study entitled "Development of and Interventions in a Mouse Model of Non-Alcoholic Steatohepatitis [NASH] and Metabolic Syndrome." Luthin also was
