

Department of Classics

Howard College of Arts and Sciences
Samford University
est. 1998

μάθε παθεῖν~disce pati

Students who major or minor in Greek, Latin or the Classics at Samford University will discover a new world offering the wisdom of ages past. With a key that unlocks the universe of the Ancient Greeks and Romans, students will open a door leading to adventures in history, literature, philosophy, archaeology, theater, poetry...

...And your friends and family will wonder at your academic courage while future employers will know that you have willingly faced an intellectual challenge. Exploring the civilizations centered at Rome and Athens will rigorously educate you as you dissect patterns of language, study the structure of an epic poem, or analyze the material remains of a Roman fortress.

(Then there are the Jan-Term trips to Greece and Italy...)

Stephen R. Todd, Chair

Ph.D. in Classics

Doug Clapp

Ph.D. in Classics

Shannon Flynt

Ph.D. in Roman Archaeology

Sophie Kozak

M.A. in Latin

P. Andrew Montgomery

Ph.D. in Classics

Brooks Hall 208

205.726.4261

classics@samford.edu