

CLINICAL SUPERVISOR AND INSTRUCTOR
DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNICATION SCIENCES AND DISORDERS
(Non-Tenure Track, 12-month)

Samford University's School of Health Professions invites applicants interested in serving in a Christian university environment to apply for the position of clinical supervisor and Instructor in the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders. This non-tenure-track faculty position is a 12-month appointment and will begin in Fall 2022. The major responsibilities of the clinical supervisor are to provide supervision of both internal and external clinical experiences for students, to ensure clinical skill competencies are met in a timely manner, to assist in providing training for clinical preceptors, to monitor student progress in the clinical setting, and to teach clinical/didactic courses, as needed. Additional responsibilities may include, but are not limited to: assisting with program assessment, accreditation standards and reports, curriculum development and assessment, student advising, and student mentoring.

Qualified candidates will hold a graduate degree in speech-language pathology from a CAA-accredited program. Candidates should have a minimum of three years of clinical experience as a speech-language pathologist (SLP), be certified as an SLP, and be eligible for licensure as an SLP in the state of Alabama. Preferred candidates have experience as a clinical supervisor and clinical experience in both adult and pediatric settings. A commitment to academic excellence and the ability to work and communicate effectively with faculty, students and colleagues are expected.

The College of Health Sciences includes four schools: School of Health Professions, Moffett & Sanders School of Nursing, McWhorter School of Pharmacy, and School of Public Health. The College offers multiple degree programs and majors within the health sciences with an inter-professional education focus that reflects today's team approach to health care delivery and professional practice.
