Samford University’s Orlean Beeson School of Education invites individuals interested in serving in a Christian university environment to submit applications for a full-time faculty position in the Department of Curriculum and Instruction at the assistant, associate or full professor level. The position is a nine-month, tenure-track position and will begin in the fall of 2017. The individual hired in this position is responsible for teaching courses each academic semester in graduate and undergraduate programs in secondary education, and for providing program leadership. The faculty member is expected to participate and lead in course and curriculum changes, serve as a mentor to students, and recruit and recommend admission for prospective graduate students as assigned. The individual is expected to participate fully in scholarship, service to the profession, school, university and community, as well as collaboration with K–12 schools.

Qualified candidates will be graduates of an accredited school with an earned a doctoral degree in secondary education curriculum and instruction, or a related field. Candidates should have K–12 teaching experience. Candidates must possess excellent interpersonal relationship skills, organizational skills and the ability to provide leadership as a faculty member. Prior teaching experience and successful performance in the faculty role is preferred, including teaching graduate students and teaching in an online format. A commitment to academic excellence and the ability to work effectively with faculty, students and colleagues is expected. Candidates must be willing to support the Christian mission of Samford University and Orlean Beeson School of Education.

Academic rank and salary are dependent upon qualifications, experience, previous academic teaching experience and scholarship accomplishments.

Samford University is located in Birmingham, Alabama, and is a nationally recognized academic institution. Samford is ranked 4th in the South among regional universities by U.S. News & World Report, and has been nationally recognized for academics, affordability and value by a number of prestigious publications and rankings. For more information, go to samford.edu.

Review of applications will begin June 15, 2017, and will continue until the position is filled. Please forward a letter of application, curriculum vita, and the names of three professional references to:

Dr. Jodi Newton
Orlean Beeson School of Education
Samford University
800 Lakeshore Drive
Birmingham, AL 35229
jbnewton@samford.edu

Please put Curriculum and Instruction Faculty and your last name in the subject line if sent by email.

Samford University is an Equal Opportunity Institution that complies with applicable law prohibiting discrimination in its educational and employment policies and does not unlawfully discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, age, disability, veteran status, genetic information or national or ethnic origin.